Your key to the Iranian transport and logistics market

Iran has a strategic position at the most important trade route between Asia and Europe along the North-South Transport Corridor. With the “One belt, one road” project, China has been planning a new Silk Road since 2013, which is intended to create an intercontinental infrastructure network between China and 64 other countries in Asia, Africa and Europe. Both large-scale transit projects make the development of Iranian infrastructure and transportation networks necessary.
